Foundation Course Descriptions

SW 220 INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WORK
3 CREDIT HOURS
Prerequisite: ENGL 112
Course Description
This course is an introduction to the profession of social work and the philosophical, societal and organizational contexts within which professional social work activities take place. This course provides the opportunity for students to explore their interest in and potential for a career in social work. It introduces the knowledge, skills, and values of social work as a profession and explores the variety of fields of practice and the roles of social workers. Cognitive and interaction skills necessary for competent practice are introduced in this course. The course emphasizes the value base of social work practice and its commitment to diversity, populations at risk, and social and economic justice for marginalized persons such as immigrant populations. Special attention will be given to role of social work with victims of natural disasters, e.g., Hurricane Katrina 2004, Haitian Earthquake January 2010, Hurricane Sandy 2012, and more recently Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, 2017

SW 231 MICRO PRACTICE - SOCIAL WORK METHODS
3 CREDIT HOURS
Prerequisites: ENGL 150 and SW 220
Course Description
Methods of Social Work Practice I introduces the knowledge and skills of generalist social work practice including engagement, assessment, planning, implementation, evaluation, termination and follow-up. The empowerment and strengths perspectives, social work values and social work ethics are applied to practice with clients of diverse racial, cultural, class and religious backgrounds. Focus is on micro practice with individuals and families.

SW 304 THEORIES OF HUMAN BEHAVIOR IN THE SOCIAL ENVIRONMENT
3 CREDIT HOURS
Prerequisites: SW 323 and SW 337
Course Description
This course presents theories and knowledge on the development and behavior of individuals and families across the life span, including biological, psychological, social, and spiritual and cultural aspects. The roles of micro, mezzo, and macro social systems in the promotion, maintenance or deterrence of health and well-being are examined. A social systems perspective is used to understand the interactions between and among individuals, families, groups and organizations in the social environment. Diversity is examined in its many facets including race, ethnicity, social class, gender, sexual orientation, and disability, as it impacts on individual and group development and behavior. Discrimination and other forms of oppression are considered in terms of their impact on individual development and behavior.

SW 308-040 SOCIAL RESEARCH METHODS FOR SOCIAL WORK
Pre-requisites: MTH 209, SW 220, and ENGL311
3 CREDIT HOURS
Course Description
This undergraduate course in social work research introduces the beginning students to the foundational knowledge, including but not limited to conceptual framework and analytical tools, of conducting methodologically sound empirical research. The primacy of interdependence between research based practice and practice based research is emphasized in order to make social work practice recursively evidence informed as well as optimally outcome oriented and effective. The qualitative, quantitative (experimental and quasi-experimental) and mixed method research projects, students choose to undertake, under the close supervision of an instructor, will entail issues that social workers, as front-line clinical and policy practitioners, contend with as they go about engaging individuals, families, groups, organizations and communities to assess their multiple intersecting needs in order to provide the most empirically grounded interventions/services, consistent with the nine competencies recommended by the Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards (EPAS) 2015. The course is purported to integrate four key components of the curriculum design: (a) program and mission goals, (b) explicit curriculum, (c) implicit curriculum, and (d) outcome assessment, as specified by EPAS, within the context of a simple logic model.

SW 323 SOCIAL WORK WITH DIVERSE POPULATIONS
3 CREDIT HOURS
Course Description
This course is designed to review and affirm the history, cultural values, and family structures of the diverse life styles within African, Asian, Caribbean, Hispanic, Native and White ethnic American cultures. This examination of diversity includes issues within groups of gender, class, age, immigration, history, sexual orientation, level of acculturation, color, language, religion, and spirituality. From an ecosystems perspective, the course examines social and economic factors which have shaped the experiences and socioeconomic status of persons within these groups. Throughout the semester this course will explore the relevance of cultural diversity to social work values and practice.

SW 330 MEZZO PRACTICE- GROUP AND FAMILY
3 CREDIT HOURS
Pre-requisites: SSC 101 and ENGL 112
Course Description
This course is the second of three required social work practice methods courses within the framework of generalist practice and the empowerment and strengths perspectives. The focus is on the mezzo level of practice with families and groups utilizing the planned change intervention model consisting of engagement, assessment, planning, implementation, evaluation, termination and follow-up. There is emphasis on the ethics and values of the profession as they apply to situations with diverse populations in an urban environment.

SW 331 SOCIAL WORK METHODS MACRO PRACTICE WITH ORGANIZATIONS AND COMMUNITIES
Pre-requisites: SW 231 and SW 330
Course Description
This course will further develop the knowledge skills of generalist practice and will provide the knowledge and skills necessary to apply problem solving methods to groups and communities. Students will learn alternative intervention strategies with populations at risk, and examine ethical conflicts in work with groups and communities. Emphasis will also be placed on teaching students how to conduct a generalist social work assessment and engage in action planning in order to frame suggested solutions to group and/or community problems. This course will also emphasize understanding the processes that perpetuate oppression and unequal access to opportunities/resources such as: an unequal access to power within political, social, economic institutions/organizations.
Service-learning pedagogy provides the framework for this course and sixteen hours of experience at a pre-selected community service-learning site is required. This course encourages student experimentation and application through reflection, written work, self and group assessments, and public presentations. Lectures, discussions (small and large group), experiential activities, reflection, and videos will be utilized.

SW 337-040 POPULATIONS AT RISK
3 CREDITS
Pre-requisites: SW 302 and ENGL 3ll
Course Description
This course explores factors that contribute to populations being at risk and strategies to address risk factors. The impact of group membership on access to resources is examined. Students are introduced to the concepts of distributive justice, human rights and global oppression and its relationship to social and economic justice. Strategies to address discrimination, oppression, and economic deprivation and to promote social and economic justice are discussed.

SW 338 SOCIAL WELFARE POLICIES AND SERVICES
3 CREDIT HOURS
Pre-requisites: SW 220, SW 230 and ENGL 150
Course Description
This course examines the history and development of social welfare policies and services with a significant focus on contemporary social welfare policies and issues affecting at risk populations and the delivery of social services. Students learn to use a policy analysis framework which enables them to analyze and assess social welfare policies for the purposes of planned change and social action. Societal values are explored as they relate to the development of policy and congruence with social work values and ethics. Cultural diversity, populations at risk, and social and economic justice are considered as important factors affecting both social welfare policies and social services.

SW 420 FIELD PRACTICUM I
6 CREDIT HOURS (includes field placement and seminar)
Pre-requisites: SW 323, SW 337, and SW 331
Course Description
In Field Practicum I, students integrate social work knowledge, skills, and values into generalist social work practice in a community agency. Faculty, agency field instructors, and students collaborate to facilitate the transition from classroom to practical field experience. Under the supervision of an MSW, students must complete 15 hours of field work per week for a total of 200 clock hours in an agency approved by the Medgar Evers College Social Work Field Coordinator. No student will be allowed to do more than the 15 hours required per week. Students are also required to attend a weekly two hour field integration seminar which serves to guide the students through the process of integrating knowledge, skills, and values into practice. Field Practicum I focuses on generalist social work practice with individual, family, and small group client systems at the micro and mezzo levels of practice in an urban environment. This course is the first of two required field practicum courses.

SW 421 FIELD PRACTICUM II - SENIOR CAPSTONE COURSE
SW 420 & Co-requisites in Area of Special Interest
Course Description
This course is a continuation of SW 420 Field Practicum I. In Field Practicum II, the knowledge, values, and skills developed throughout the social work curriculum will be integrated into social work practice in a community agency. Students continue to engage in structured, individualized learning opportunities in a community agency setting. Faculty, agency field instructors, and students collaborate to assist the intern in applying generalist social work skills, values and knowledge to practice. During the semester, students will complete 15 hours of fieldwork per week for a minimum of 200 hours in an agency setting approved by the Medgar Evers College Social Work Field Coordinator. Please note: Students will not do more than the required 15 hours per week without prior approval by the professor. This course will serve as a culminating opportunity, students will incorporate the knowledge, skills, and theories learned in social work courses into the final assignment, which is a Generalist Practice paper. Students will utilize the generalist framework in identifying client systems’ strengths in at-risk populations including those discriminated against because of race, gender, or because of other conditions and analyze the effects of policies on social work practice with at-risk populations. In addition, students will engage in educationally directed practice activities in the agency setting that focus on the generalist problem-solving approach (engagement, data collection, assessment, planning, intervention, evaluation, termination, and follow-up) with individuals, families, groups, communities and organizations. The primary focus of which is on the generalist practice at the macro level with organizations and communities.
